As Research Programs expand on the UAF Campus, storage and staging for field equipment and archival space are becoming a growing issue. Many initiatives comes with a certain amount of field research equipment that is only used in the summer and must be stored though the off eason. Grants also come with stipulations concerning the storage of research data, specimens, and DNA in a safe collections area. The new facility will provide adequate secure storage for UAF research programs.

Additional Information / Prior Funding History:Project Description/Justification:

The main objective of this facility is to provide adequate secure storage to many of the research programs on the UAF Campus. By providing adequate storage space, UAF will be able to continue its growth as a world leader in research. Without the space, grants will have to be turned down and research dollars shifted to other, more capable institutes.
