Brief Summary and Statement of Need:

Supplemental Housing Development Program utilizes corporate (AHFC) funds to supplement federal (HUD) funds to construct decent, safe and sanitary housing through regional housing authorities established under AS 18.55.996. Funds are used to cover housing development costs related to water distribution, sewer hookups, electrical distribution systems, road construction to project site, site development, and energy efficiency improvements. State laws limit the use of these funds to 20% of the HUD's total development cost per unit. These funds are also prohibited from being used for administrative or other costs of the housing authority.

project. Funds are used for on-site water and sewer facilities, roads to project sites, electrical distribution systems, and energy-efficient design features in homes constructed by the regional housing authorities. HUD regulations prohibit the use of development funds for construction of access roads, electrical distribution systems and certain other infrastructure costs.

Since its inception, the state has appropriated more than $100 million to augment over $500 million in HUD funds and $50 million in public health service funds to build a total over 7,000 houses in over 250 communities.

Supplemental housing grant funds reinvest funds into communities by creating 300 local jobs statewide, creating nearly 100 training and apprenticeship opportunities in local labor pools, and through the purchase of supplies from local vendors.

Because HUD funds are restrictive in their use, AHFC supplemental funds can be used to pay for site development, water and sewer systems, electrical distribution, and will be used to leverage HUD funds to stretch them further.

Alaska census data shows that the largest population growths have occurred in rural Alaska. These homes are vital to the economy and the safety of residents in rural Alaska. It is important to note that for every home built in the state, 600 jobs are affected, i.e. jobs are created for construction workers, teachers have more students to teach, and expanded schools become eligible for federal dollars. As the economy is strengthened in rural Alaska, urban businesses benefit through increased sales of material and goods, which can account for 40 percent of their annual profits.
