A Bristol Bay program review was completed this summer by the division's chief salmon fisheries scientist and area management staff. A result of this review was consensus that a core program needed to be defined for the Bristol Bay salmon management program. The core program plan was accepted by the director. To that end, $150.0 in general fund is being transferred from HQ Fisheries Management Component to Central Region Fisheries Management Component to support this core program.
Recently OMB has directed agencies to maximize the indirect rate being charged on revenue coming into the state. To that end, the HQ office is moving various contractual support costs formerly paid for with general fund to indirect, and thereby freeing up general fund to transfer to Central Region for this program.

Mark-recapture population estimation projects are needed to validate sonar counts of sockeye salmon passing upstream in the Kenai, Yentna and Copper Rivers. The primary objective of these projects is to independently estimate abundance of sockeye salmon entering the rivers, using mark and recapture methods, and compare these estimates with sonar estimates for validation purposes. Sonar technology has been used for over 20 years to count salmon in Alaska, however, there is uncertainty relative to target detection and tracking that affects the accuracy of the estimates of in-river returns using sonar. The intent is to implement a mark-recovery estimate in the Copper River, Kenai River, and the Yentna River. Once the work is completed on each of these rivers, the effort would be moved to address similar issues with other sonar based escapement estimation projects in Central Region. The benefits to the users would be more accurate forecasts, improved escapement goals, larger and more stable harvests. Forecasts are used by processors and fishers to help make decisions about the number of employees and crewmembers to hire, as well as the amount of supplies and gear to purchase.

Increase test fish authority to support the Bering Sea and Aleutian Islands (BS/AI) observer program in Westward Region
Beginning in August 2005 crab fisheries in the Bering Sea and Aleutian Islands (BS/AI) will be conducted under a new federal "crab rationalization" program involving individual fishing quotas issued to distinct vessels. This fundamental change in the basic design of these fisheries will substantially change the state's inseason management program for these fisheries as well. Longer seasons, inherent incentives for potential high-grading (and coincident increased discards) of targeted catch, potential for increased (or decreased) bycatch of non-targeted catch, and likely greater spatial distribution of fishing effort all will require that onboard observer coverage of these fisheries be increased.
Currently all catcher-processors carry observers, each of which is paid for by the vessel. However, less than 10% of the catcher-vessel fleets in the two main fisheries (Bristol Bay red king crab and Bering Sea snow crab) are observed; funding for this coverage comes from the department's BS/AI Crab Observer Deployment Test Fishery Program. With implementation of crab rationalization, observer coverage of catcher vessels in these two fisheries should be increased to 20% and 30%, respectively, given the likely span of these fisheries in time and space. Increasing observer coverage by more than double in these fisheries requires a substantial increase in the test fishery allocation for this observer project, from the current $650.0 to $1,336.5. This requires an overall increase to the region's test fish authority of $686.5.
AMD: Decrement test fish authority needed for the BS/AI rationalized crab fisheries
A test fish increment of $686.5 requested earlier in the Governor's amended budget is being reduced by $461.5 (3/11/05) to leave a net increment of $225.0. This is necessary due to the National Marine Fisheries Service recently providing the department federal funding to help support the Bering Sea/Aleutian Island rationalized crab fisheries along with these test fish receipts. The new federal funding is requested in the Commercial Fisheries Special Projects component.

Two large-scale genetic stock identification projects would be conducted in Upper Cook Inlet and Bristol Bay. The intent is to fully implement an on-going genetic stock identification program in Bristol Bay ($250.) and in Upper Cook Inlet ($250.0). These two projects are being included in the Fisheries Development component and used by the Genetics Laboratory to support fishery management of sockeye salmon in these two important areas of Alaska. Discrete stock management has been an important objective in both of these sockeye salmon fisheries. Mixed stock harvests of sockeye salmon occurs within each district and section in Bristol Bay and Upper Cook Inlet. This remains a contentious issue among user groups and makes escapement goal definition and forecasts difficult for fishery management. Development of genetic stock identification for use in Upper Cook Inlet and Bristol Bay sockeye management would provide more accurate and precise estimates of catch contributions than are currently available. This information would be critical to both ADF&G and the Alaska Board of Fisheries to modify existing management plans, develop new plans, develop harvesting strategies, and improve the quality of brood tables, which are used to set escapement goals and forecast future returns. The benefits to the users of genetic stock identification are that it provides a better understanding of the contributions of various salmon stocks to fisheries. Accurate stock identification and improved stock assessment capability can be scientifically incorporated into management regimes to provide sustainable and stable commercial, recreational and personal use fisheries that harvest wild stocks.

Transfer out SDPR authority from Sport Fisheries Habitat Component to Commercial Fisheries Special Projects due to an error in identifying the correct funding in one specific project within Sport Fisheries Habitat.

SDPR authority is needed to receive funding from the Northern Fund Committee of the Pacific Salmon Commission. At the current time, the amount of funding anticipated to be available this year is about $3 million, some of which will be used to fund the "Northern Fund" project included in this request for increased receipt authority.

This project will provide the equipment for the department to develop and implement novel genetic markers that will be used to identify stocks of salmon by national origin that contribute to fisheries under jurisdiction of the U.S./Canada Pacific Salmon Treaty, which is needed in meeting Pacific Salmon Treaty Annex provisions. Federal contracts that the department have in place provide operational expenses for application of these markers to chinook and sockeye salmon fisheries in Southeast Alaska. The purchase of this equipment and the marker development will complement these contracts and free up existing equipment for other domestic stock identification efforts. The equipment to be purchased includes a DNA sequencer, robotic liquid handles, polymerase chain reaction (PCR) machines, and a PCR machine with robotic loader. The commodities line item request is for the purchase of chemicals required to operate the equipment.

This federal authority is needed to receive new funding from the National Marine Fisheries Service. Beginning in August 2005 crab fisheries in the Bering Sea and Aleutian Islands (BS/AI) will be conducted under a new federal "crab rationalization" program involving individual fishing quotas issued to distinct vessels. This fundamental change in the basic design of these fisheries will substantially change the state's inseason management program for these fisheries as well. Longer seasons, inherent incentives for potential high-grading (and coincident increased discards) of targeted catch, potential for increased (or decreased) bycatch of non-targeted catch, and likely greater spatial distribution of fishing effort all will require that onboard observer coverage of these fisheries be increased. These federal funds will be used to support the increased costs associated with monitoring these fisheries. 3/11/05 amendment.

The Boards of Fisheries and Game need a general fund increase to ensure meeting their independent and joint statutory mandates. Increased funding will benefit all regions of the state, as both boards will resume meeting in regions and communities of the state, and will provide the boards sufficient time to take public testimony before fully deliberating and adopting regulations. Specifically, the increased funding will more adequately provide for costs associated with travel to regional areas; staff time, board meeting time, and meeting facilities. The increased funding will also assist the boards to further meet statutory requirements associated with publication of proposals, amended regulations, and public comments by Advisory Committees and individuals.

The exceptions include the lease payment for the Anchorage Jail, the subport parking lot, and space left vacant by the HR Integration initiative. The purpose of this transfer is to provide state agencies with more flexibility, responsibility and control over their lease costs. The transferred general funds are estimated to be sufficient to cover the majority of projected FY 05 general funds lease costs. The Department of Administration will continue to work to reduce lease costs, but if the department is unsuccessful, the tenant department is responsible for payment of the full lease costs.

This change record is necessary to move the receipt supported services (RSS) authorization back to the organization (CFEC) that is covering their leasing costs. This transfer amount does not cover the full share of CFEC's leasing costs and this transfer is consistent with how other division funding is handled for leasing. All other division's lease funds are budgeted under their respective budgets. Only the general funds will be budgeted in the state facilities rent component.

Only the general funds to cover leased costs are budgeted here and the overall FY06 department lease costs are expected to increase by 150K. This increase covers 80% of the increase and it will be directed toward the lease of CFEC space in Juneau. Due to an internal allocation of GF lease funds, the FY06 CFEC share of the total lease costs is increasing by 120K and these general funds will be used to pay for that increased cost.

During the FY05 budget process, 2 part-time positions were deleted and 2 full time positions were reclassified downward, creating excess funding to move to contractual services. This transfer moves the $77.8 from personal services to contractual services to cover anticipated increases in EPR rates and unknown consolidated mail costs.
