38900	AP	Fairbanks Virology Laboratory Completion	6,500,000

Summary

Design is currently underway for a new virology lab in Fairbanks to be located on the West Ridge of the University of Alaska campus. Due to the extreme and unanticipated escalation of construction costs in Alaska during the past several years, combined with the increase of transportation costs and petroleum based products, additional funds are necessary in order to award the construction contract for this project. If this funding is received timely, we will be able to meet construction deadlines.
