Brief Summary and Statement of Need:

The 11,408 square foot Stratton Library is located in Sitka on the Sheldon Jackson College campus, adjacent to the existing state-owned and operated museum. During the 2010 legislative session, the legislature appropriated funding for the State of Alaska Department of Education and Early Development to purchase the Stratton Library from the Sheldon Jackson College Trustees. The library was originally constructed in 1974, and both the roofing and siding systems have exceeded their useful life. This project would replace the failing roof and siding, protecting the state's recent investment in the purchase of the library building.
