Project Description/Justification:

This harbor was transferred by the department to the City of Ketchikan on December 19, 2001 and has been in serious disrepair since the city took over ownership. The floats were built in the 1970's. After many decades, the float system is showing signs of age. The city has already replaced four existing floats and renovated two others. The remaining floats serve the largest fishing vessels (up to 90 feet) in the area. None of the access ramps are long enough to meet ADA requirements and the city's only public crane is inaccessible at tides below seven feet. This harbor also serves a medevac role for the neighboring community of Metlakatla. The local match is coming from the City of Ketchikan, the Ketchikan Gateway Borough and the U.S. Commerce Development Administration.
