Brief Summary and Statement of Need:

The Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF) is a federal 50-50 matching grant program for development or acquisition of public outdoor recreation areas and facilities. Each project provides short-term jobs in planning, construction and management during the development phase, and long-term positive economic impacts. The State of Alaska typically uses half of its annual federal appropriation for state park projects, while the other half is granted to competing local governments (cities, boroughs or tribes) for public outdoor recreation projects within their jurisdictions. Recently, the apportionment for LWCF and a related fund through the Gulf of Mexico Energy Security Act (GOMESA) have increased dramatically.

Project Description/Justification:

The need for developing and assuring access to quality public outdoor recreation areas and facilities continues to grow with Alaska's population. The Land Water Conservation Fund (LWCF) provides an opportunity for local, regional, or state applicants to receive up to 50 percent reimbursement of eligible costs for developing or upgrading outdoor recreation areas or facilities. Grant funds are also available to the state for fulfilling the statewide comprehensive outdoor recreation planning requirements of the program.

This federal grant program administered by the National Park Service (NPS) was established by Congress under the LWCF Act of 1965 to provide a national legacy of high quality public outdoor recreation for current and future generations. In Alaska, LWCF assisted projects include downhill ski areas, ADA compliant trails, neighborhood parks, rifle ranges, soccer and softball fields, and skate parks. Projects in urban as well as remote areas (e.g., Bethel, Hoonah, Barrow) have received LWCF assistance.

Fifty percent matching grants (1 to 1 match) provide crucial funding that can make the difference between build/no build for important outdoor recreation opportunities. These projects benefit the people of Alaska by providing both facility development and open space. Each development project provides short-term jobs for planning, construction, and management during the construction phase as well as continued long-term positive economic impact from the ongoing utilization of the park site.

The outdoor recreation industry is an important component (4.2 percent) of the overall Alaskan economy, contributing $3.2 billion in spending that supports 22,500 jobs. 81 percent of Alaskans participate in outdoor recreation activities (tied for first with Montana), with 58 percent saying opportunities for outdoor activities are a reason they live here.

The FY 22 Capital Budget Request for LWCF seeks $3,500,000 in federal receipt authority, $402,655 in required state match for indirect administration costs, and $1,750,000 in required state match for state project grants, for a total request of $2,152,655 in state funding. Typically, one half of LWCF projects grants are state projects, and the remaining half is allocated to city, municipal, borough and tribal government project grants.

With the passage this summer of the 2020 Great American Outdoors Act, which mandates funding of the LWCF state assistance program, Alaska can anticipate an annual allocation of approximately $3.5 million of funding in the foreseeable future. Access to the project grant funds requires federal receipt authority, 1 to 1 state match for indirect administration costs that includes a state LWCF grant administrator and current statewide comprehensive outdoors recreation plan (SCORP), as well as 1 to 1 match for state project grants. Other local government applicants have to provide for the 1 to 1 match funds for project grants.

Sample of recent Alaska based LWCF Project Grants for State and Local Governments, with LWCF federal match indicated.
